Talking Points for Narcotics Warning Meeting

The following are talking points which you may want to use during your appearance at the Narcotics Warning Meeting scheduled for 1400 hours on 27 September. A list of attendees is also attached.

- I think it is useful for the Intelligence Community to meet monthly on narcotics problems, and I am glad to speak to this first gathering. Coordination among member agencies can be improved, and getting together periodically is a good way to do it.
- I hope you will consider starting production of national estimates on narcotics. We have not done this in the past. National estimates offer a good way of placing important intelligence before policymakers, and I think we should make use of this established channel.
- You should also consider taking a close look at legal restraints on the use in US courts of intelligence collected abroad on US persons suspected of narcotics traffic. The laws and executive orders need to be summarized so that collectors -- whether CIA case officers in the field or NSA intercept operators -- know what they can do and what they cannot do. We probably ought to work with the Congress on this too.
- As we move into more strategic collection abroad and analysis at home, we should be sure that we are using all the traditional intelligence tools. Satellite imagery, communications intercepts and technical devices are tools that come to mind.
